the stated goal of EXTENSIVE IMMANENCE is to publish very long works of experimental literature. each text is longer than 1,200 pages. these are sometimes written by computer manipulation, sometimes by human 'hands' on a computer keyboard, sometimes by email collaboration, other instances by combinations of any of the previous means.

as a stated length, more than 1,200 pages describes the "EXTENSIVE" part of the press' name.

a quality of "IMMANENCE" is more complicated and evanescent. it is a term with as many definitions as people who use it. a general description, not a definition, would go something like: "it covers the universe", a big claim for a work of literature, but this won't be the first time.

a title like EXTENSIVE IMMANENCE could be seen as a tautology. instead following Gertrude Stein's idea that repetition is insistence, not repetition. the works included in the press-identity must be very long.

thanks for taking some time with these texts.

the press is always reading new manuscripts in electronic form. please inquire before sending your work by writing an email to Peter Ganick at the above address.

Jim Leftwich and John Crouse have been writing ACTS for about a decade.
the entire text is close to 7,000 ACTS.
here EXTENSIVE IMMANENCE presents ACTS (1-1200).
EI will present the entire work as it becomes possible.

[from an email exchange between John Crouse and Jim Leftwich : July 2004]

Leftwich : i've been thinking of the colon as a very slim gulf, a near-nexus, where the two sets of words conjoin, collide and/or conflict. rarely do i write 3 words as commentary on the 3 other words in the same line. very rarely. sometimes i make lists of words, in groups of threes, while i'm at work. then i bring the lists home and attach them to whatever i have from you. i try to make them fit. sometimes that means making them fit in the text field i have set in my "acts" template. if i have 3 polysyllabic words in a set i will look for one of your lines which is composed of shorter words. meanings percolate from the turbulence of these appositions.

Crouse : the way you echo twisting from the bottom up frequently helixes the act, more turbulence. thinking in terms of appositions, that is, thinking of making them happen, & thinking while they happen, fits & unfits, is thrilling, endless, spinning helix. i think as people take to the meanings made (& unmade) per collations, they for the instant the synapse sizzles, at least, embody, the words, effectively acting them out, in thought, perhaps in deeds. the sparking got to inform future data collations, hadn't it? maybe im conceited to think so. wing & a prayer, thankdog its out of my hands, happens anyway, neurons & electriicty, higher powers. lipping prayers. reading as saying, sparking as doing. is whats saying whats said whats what whats said is saying? alot, all, of these acts, if spoken, are even then a shorthand, thinking out loud longhands, molecular structure of the sizzles particulars, time & place considerations, meaning-making, holes to fill, cramming head for fittest shape, full, spilling out mouths.
